FAIRY GODMOTHER: So, there I am, minding my own business when suddenly I find myself with this girl--boo-hooing, bad mouthing her family, the whole nine yards. On top of that, she wants me to help her get ready to go to some party. I tell ya, the godmother business ain't what it used to be.

CINDERELLA: Do you have my dress ready yet?

FGM: Cinderella Revisited.

C: By Peg Ratliff

(Cinderella sits on the floor beside one of the chairs, sobbing into her arms. FGM spins around several times, stops, shakes her head, and looks around.)

FGM: Whoa! What is this?!

C: Oh! My fairy godmother! Took you long enough.

FGM: We are not related.

C: No, you are my fairy godmother. You're here to help me.

FGM: Help you do what?

C: (Slowing down; getting up and sitting on the chair) I'm Cinderella and my stupid sisters have left for the ball and I'm here sad because I can't go.

FGM: So, where do I come in?

C: (Pointing to her clothes) Do I look like I'm ready to go anywhere?

FGM: Were you even invited?

C: Everyone was! You're not familiar with this story, are you?

FGM: Look, honey, the last thing I remember is getting ready to grant some princess three wishes and--poof!--I'm here.

C: Oh boy, this is going to be fun.

FGM: Well, in case you don't know, it's the rule of fairydom that I can't leave until I've completed my task here. So let's get on with it.

C: Do you know about my family?

FGM: Did you see me at your last family reunion?
