(A reading for a teenage girl, who is anticipating Valentine’s Day mail delivery, after a quarrel with her boy friend.)

I’m through with Bob! That’s certain, and I hope he doesn’t send A valentine to set the matter right--
He can’t treat me the way he does and think I’m still his friend--
I’m through with him! I’ll tell him so tonight!

If he thinks I don’t know about the way he carries on with every girl that looks at him at school
I guess he’ll think about it some--and after I am gone
He’ll find I’m not a silly little fool!

Patricia Allen told me Bob took Sylvia to the show--
I never liked that Sylvia, from the start--
Just wait till I see Bob again! I’m going to let him know
He needn’t think that he can break my heart!

Now if he sends a Valentine to patch things up with me
I’m going to let him know a thing or two-- I’ll send it back unopened--and when he comes to see,
I’ll simply say, “I’m sorry, but we’re through!”
